The Reason for the Notice of Intention to Designate is to recognize the physical, associative and contextual value that 99 Main Street West contributes towards the Town of Grimsby's inclusive heritage.

Statement of Cultural Heritage Value or Interest

The Seamstress Cottage is an excellent example of a Loyalist stone structure built of local Grimsby sandstone. The masonry work that can be found at Nelles Manor and St. Andrew's Church has many similarities to the masonry of 99 Main Street West. The house was built in the "Loyalist" style, the term came from the array of architectural styles that the first settlers to arrive at the Forty brought with them from their native countries. The low pitched roofs, stone construction and "fortified" stone walls were common practices in European countries, and are elements we see on 99 Main Street West.

The house at 99 Main Street has direct associations with the development of the Village of Grimsby during the 18th and 19th centuries. Robert Nelles had George Ball surveyed the property in 1840, Robert then had the dwelling at 99 Main Street West built for his Daughter Mary Anne Nelles, who was a widow returning to the Forty after living in Brantford. Mary returned to the Forty after the death of her husband and moved into the newly constructed cottage, to be the full time Seamstress.

The building at 99 Main Street West has a strong historical and physical connection to its surroundings. The dwelling is a landmark building on the East side of Main Street West, and has been known as the "Seamstress Cottage" to local residents for some time. The house is compatible with the surrounding structures, many of the houses on this section of Main Street West were built to take advantage of the sloping grade towards Forty Mile Creek.
